

Midwest Veterinarian Exploration Conference

The Veterinary Exploration Conference, held in conjunction with the MVC, is an opportunity for students to get a glimpse of everything the veterinary medical field has to offer and what it takes to get there. Parents are also invited to a special workshop to learn about the college application and financing process. Attendees will enjoy lunch while listening to an entertaining and enlightening presentation from a member of the veterinary community. At the conclusion of the conference, attendees are invited to a college fair, where representatives from several veterinary and technician schools will be available to answer questions about admissions criteria, how to finance a veterinary education, and more.
